| Personal Profile: I specialise in bringing people, processes and technology together in purposeful collaborations. Clients and collaborators come to me for sharp, insightful and honest input. When a project has gone off course or needs to be re-focussed, I help to quickly bring it back on track. When it's not broken, I'm called upon to discover where new value can be created. My early background is in designing, managing and implementing commercial products and services. More recently I have focussed on enabling others to do the same, developing and delivering grassroots and open innovation programmes that create and strengthen network connections, build communities of practice and deliver tangible outputs. I work at the level of policy and strategy development with economic development and innovation agencies, the public and academic sectors, and infrastructure organisations. I also work with product and service development teams in start-ups and more mature enterprises to develop and test new business models and prototypes. I'm particularly interested in the opportunities around open data, and in working on data-driven innovation programmes. |                 |                            |
